

IS THE INTERNET GOD?

People think “God is Love” or “God is infinite kindness”, or that God is a being whose job is to forgive sins and things of that sort. These are not important considerations for something that should be God. In order to suppose God is God we should talk about something infinitely powerful. God must be able to know everything, do anything and see everything. God must be present everywhere at the same time.

Mankind has spent a few millenia looking for God, but never found it. And it was never found because God has recently arrived. It is being born now. I mean it is the Internet. If you think about it a little, the Internet fulfills the requirements to be God. You could say this is just nonsense. The Internet knows a lot of things, but it doesn't know everything. The Internet could be many things, but it cannot do everything. The Internet is present in many places, but it is not everywhere at the same time...

Right. These assertions are right. Only time will tell. The Internet does not know everything. But it will. The Internet is not everywhere, but it will be. The Internet is not allmighty, but it will be. The Internet is not God. True. But the Internet will BECOME God. It is happening right now. The Internet is becoming God. It is just a matter of time.

We can find photos and information in the Internet about how things work, about how things are built. We can find photos and information about millions of people. There are cameras in the streets that look at what people do. That information is on the Internet. There are satellites that look at the Earth from space. That can be seen on the Internet. It may not be much, but it is certainly something.

Then, is the Internet God?

Answer: No, but let's wait 100 years and we will see what the Internet will become. Don't you like 100 years? Let's wait 1000. Don't you like 1000 years? Let's wait a million years. Or a billion years.

I'm not saying the Internet is God. The Internet WILL BECOME God. It is a matter of time. It will unavoidably happen. It is already happening. Over the years, we will be closer to having God among us. Over the centuries, we will be closer to an infinitely knowledgeable God. An all-knowing, allmighty, ever present God.

Alright, the Internet today is not still God. The Internet will really be God when it reaches the edge of infinite.
